PREFACE

The race for success has gotten even clearer to achieve but is difficult to attain, as criticism towards your experience and qualification to be the next big thing are challenged by both the neo-classical antagonist and the neo-liberalist free spirited approach to be universally correct. To dogma the challenge of any migrant disposition to be fruitful in a growing society of neo-entrepreneurship and the enlightened branches to disturb the old order of measuring success in a group of economic refugees.

No matter how the status has become, the title of the labor force still remains prudent to all those who seek a new life away from the solemn agony of the forgotten economic tribes.

Having to die without disgrace that the on looking families of tomorrow can bask in the sunset knowing which future life has more benefits than the boat which sunk on their way to economic freedom.

Capital U- Who Am I?

A supposed structure which some have to endure in order to keep their lineage secure enough that there may be a possibility that their immigrant status could reward them a place in high official offices or corridors of it.

But to the hungry one, the thought of owning a business is more than enough to carry on through generations of certainties.

Behold the capitalist agendum, to show a picture of certainty with no sure destruction on how to read it.

Its trials and errors should be enough to endure its travesty of luck!

The glorified economical institutions built to nurture the hustlers of the chase, the race which measures endurance over the win, the free falling without parachutes or the pen being mightier than the cutthroats decisions to absolve labor mass movements.

All in all the excitements of the world are all described here in this eBook so what values do you succumb to the mainstream cycle to success?

Capital U- Who Am I?

Are you consistent enough to remain relevant against millions of competitors?

And are you quick witted to adopt freely without over burning yourself to accomplish the dream?

The chase is an experiment, without it the chasing would be meaningless!

Empathetically: “it is not intended to be the omnipotent of knowledge but a digression of deduced reasoning to the recipient.”

INTRODUCTION

The migrant mind is so distant and focused on the only objective a real life can offer them. An opportunity to become somebody regardless how definitive that opportunity may be bestowed at the time of apprehension.

The will to compete against millions of others and ‘others’ who are natural born, is indeed a chance of luck that whatever is conceived in the mind of the migrant is good enough to pass onwards, to their generations who are really the recipient of these migrations.

This eBook highlights the reality of migration against the race to becoming the next big immigrant story of success but the highlights shows the powers of the economic society created to accompany their occupancy but a success entropy is not one of them.

Because all are not outnumbered, favored or selected to be a better success story than others but the migrant is also at the mercy like the natural born.

Capital U- Who Am I?

A disequilibrium all too known but how can these reflective words be induced to favor the most socially economically disenfranchised?

It only favors those who can use their extra resiliency powers in understanding the economic system and how it can be bent to favor the will of the emigrant.

Knowledge on the tyrannous economies, the polluted monies and how to grab at its attention to redirect same in your direction, the culture of the resources gatekeepers and how effective persuasion can lead to be a problem solver and the price per action in developing your dreams to fruitful fruition. All valuable to those more than you!

ECONOMIES

Capital U- Who Am I?

Mobility through desertification, through mobility, through the abandonment of existing conquered territories to another, to find some engagement never before; is the only adaptation known in mankind written histories.

A continued sense of movement of people to discover new social cultures similar to theirs, to create a new repurposed life some suitors deemed necessary to survive in this complex devoted economy.

The world economy rediscovers new talent everyday to reignite the replenished and forgotten. A cycle of labor to fuel the classes of ethics and support others in their quest is not sufficient enough to support their attributes in poor economies.

A devoted populace of people only to see second generations of mobility to reap the rewards of dissent far away.

A colony of survivalists supporting growth through exercised labor in determination to keep their lineage relevant enough to be a people with a new country.

As influx of the merchant tide ship away on shore, new labor of movements also destined to keep their lineage continual.

Capital U- Who Am I?

With rules and maritime laws all incorporating division of rule and entitlement still cannot dispel the true routine of people to remove themselves in order to reap a greater reward in sustenance.

The power play between economies not to scale and a citizen regime attached to old republic laws, to destroy in confidence the people who hope to see their adopted years in peace rather than be at arms against a state of rulers.

A deadly price to pay for actionable results as tyranny towards a growing economy destabilizes the future hopes of the children of destiny to now rebuild what their ancestors destroyed.

As intra-cultural nations find new ways politically to enforce unto minorities of displaced citizenship, to gather all that were collated and bestowed unto themselves a destiny far away from the economy which satisfies their ego.

A homeland unwanted and a people dissatisfied about life in general, sought violence over negotiations that the ruins caused by geo political giants are now the body of commercial handouts supporting new regimes to rebuild.

Capital U- Who Am I?

An economy not to scale as leaders holds unto old values to new industrial revolutions and hope that these principles can align to the new modern world.

A world more complex than before with too many displaced cultures, all angry about their past and how it can blend into a new uncontrolled future.

An unwanted group of people all bottled up on hate that their survival only cost one dollar to the state supporting an economy for them to continue surviving.

As the border control mandates become hostile and unapologetic to the sensibilities and sensual atrocities, the long journey has them to wield a new future.

As humans become an economic cargo valued to others and expendable as its daily output depreciates continually due to bad health, poor living conditions, poor daily sustenance and poor working conditions allotted not by choice but by the regular global occupational standard.

As replacement costs on average do not affect expenditures on production and the value of sales outputs once the participant agrees to be a valued laborer to the only unequal equation of those who have and cannot have.

Capital U- Who Am I?

A power complex dynamic neither side of a deserter can truly be comfortable to decide.

For both economic outcomes to be a laborer with no external benefits in a larger economic space or be a poor unsustainable laborer in a poorly economically ruined political institution.

Neither supports the economy of a labor force to drive sustenance and sustainability for the futures of tomorrow.

Any emergency powers liberated by the nations who encourage migration of talent or a body of people cannot adapt to the intensity of inflows brought about by political regimes not national enough to do the right thing.

For the new global workforce going forward has always stood true to the idealism of desertification and mobility.

To look for new territories to build a new lineage for the supposed off springs of the new culture.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Bred to sustain the wielders of control regardless if the border control management system has with it a colonized approach to managing border control issues.

It can never evade the will for people to move and settle where possible to do so is upon their reach.

Capital U- Who Am I?

POWERS OF POLLUTION-MONEY
MANIPULATION

Capital U- Who Am I?

An economy with a flooded market of surplus labor idle enough to cause the GDP to income ratio to affect other GDP calculative surpluses, by powers of dilution are without a doubt the manipulation of economic depletion caused by instructive labor insensibilities.

Insensitive to the global financial outreach programmes which cannot infiltrate every poor populace economy due to its dependency on the traditions of donations and volunteers and the mighty heart of its donor.

The world which is a division of other multiple economies unseen to most recipients are indeed the polluted dollars which do not enter the volunteerism of downtimes.

Surely not to be the bearer of the circumstances but the balanced economy rests on those who do not seek volunteerism as an act, to improve the money economy but innovation and sheer will of the populace who seek to do more than to be part of contributions.

But to deny the inevitable in order to force a populace to become more laborious and seek migration as a means to mass produce production in larger economies.

Capital U- Who Am I?

A pollution of labour produces a pollution of wealthy businesses that are prosperous to build better and large scale economies with more GDP growth, than most past economies but its intensified effort is to fill the labour market with jobs the state entity cannot.

A praise or curse situation undoubtedly in the necessity for those who struggle to survive and with years of a frustrated social network of disenfranchised citizens it prolonged their efforts to improve their social class dilemma.

The management of money through interest value and credited subsidies through allocated funds of debt incorporated for a state to run its affairs.

Coupled with a history of debt to repay hoping that its influence on its citizens can return with innovation and a cultivation of good nationalistic views, to devour poverty out the door of each homes and rekindle a sense of hope that can channel into productive and more resilient labour force.

The apparatus measured and quantified made judgemental errors to the production scale of the polluted migration of labour.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Categorized as whether skilled or not it still fills the void when channelling through territorial waters to evade prosecutions in order for many laws to enact leniency of actions.

Those without the resources to move, to be outlawed can only find innovative ways to conquer hunger by death; a hanging tool of rope tied to the economic struggle of the forgotten.

What can money buy? How much can it support?

The will of the succulent institutions need no proof that their will must be enshrined to protect the investors from a social collapse and away from the petty grievance of the hopeless.

Neither it rests as a game of death nor the penalties are awarded to the most hateful bitter investor to win the game but it requires intelligence far away from sympathy of other human beings.

“Other” includes the majority in the financially bad collapsing waters of their shark infested shores and their idealism of the populace many.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Where the majority of the “many” manipulate small growth of their “many” to bet on circumstantial risks grown to eradicate money in the future.

Where short term liabilities vested in short term appreciated bets turn out to be the many future hopes being crushed by those who sell dreams.

Terrible dreams creating in the nightly hour stock borrowers and back lending overnight banks turning momentum of chiming on a defeated economic state class, to enlighten the masses on the mishaps of spending, leading to a social war and an upgrade in investor chance of retributions.

As the pollution of the labor force all flooding into larger economies fuels the economy of polluted money all being manipulated to win the bet of the large investor.

Corporations are neither guilty for this nor are they free from their actions. It is the mindset of the migrated ideas, ideals, principles and culture of the deserter to figure out the difference in value of the pocket in and pocket out maxim.

Capital U- Who Am I?

The oppression is not merely understanding the value of money in a polluted space of competition but how it can benefit anyone to its maxim.

As money moves where most needed, is not the ideal one should set aside to welcome. Nor does one need to feel victimized about not knowing financial knowledge through seeking growth from one economy to another.

Capital U- Who Am I?

ULTRA-CULTURAL LIBERALIST

Capital U- Who Am I?

“For the greater good of all mankind one should start an entrepreneurial journey in solving the world's worst problems”.

But how to start? It's a fierce competitive market environment?

The when, where, how and what for, are all elements into decisive action.

The fierceness within is just the nature of humans and it is all good metrics one should also attune their way to govern.

But the topic is not for beginners' luck but the reason for the ultra mega behaviors of those who are all trying to make their next big ticket contract.

A worthy venture when they visit so many problems and little solutions all vying for an investor's luck to dwindle some valuable worth into their project of faith.

A deliverance that money owed would increase productivity or blame the market and the people for not appreciating change.

Capital U- Who Am I?

But the change movement propels the dissident to leave their comfort abode and venture into shark infested water to learn how to swim.

The metrics to survival are slim and all are betting for the most glorious death a shark can do to their prey.

The predator species of entrepreneurs and the liquidated returns to succeed market expectations are all grandeur at best.

However what is not grandeur is the possibilities one must achieve by being innovative in the swim to distract the eat into an opportunity.

The bites are the reflections that a choice was taken and the results are a lean curve plotted against you.

Yeah! Introspectively the wills are daunting that the ultra liberal world of 'do what it takes, you have the freedom to do what you like, to stop being soft' are all consumed words which neither shaped your minds into the reality of what a bite mark in shark infested water can do for a new entrepreneur.

Capital U- Who Am I?

It attracts more attention to you being the victim rather than being prepared before entrance.

So attraction can be a useful word once used well in a liberal ultra capitalist market.

Its method must be suited to the detailed product of a new entrepreneurial model, hence the reason a deserter fled miles into a probable risk to see how far their business model can be utilized.

To buy into consumer wishes, to meet them directly into why your product can be a problem solver and reduce time in painstaking issues, where solving is an attractive alternative away from non liberation actions.

The act to liberate even in the swim amongst the sharks, displaying to them a way how to not be caught by bigger predators in the ocean of competitiveness or defeating them by discovering a solution not to be bitten and to redirect attention to other things not related to the attractive syndrome.

So to the observer of the competitive market one must deter from seeing the intrusive nature of the hunt and to see a clear road map to always find solutions on the journey no matter how long the road is.

How you decide to travel on that road will determine how quickly you can achieve its merits.

A survival guide to entrepreneurship cannot fill all new upstarts going into new territories unclear on what the actions are.

Bloodshed or path on the back; the fierce competitiveness market ensures that no misguided believer of change can just abuse the power of innovation and enter without showing their bite marks.

Signs of struggles and stories of conquest and defeat!

The ultra men and women playbook of tricks, fighting side by side with a harpoon of vigor and bitter contentment that a life wasted on a dream to die rich is a glory trophy for some.

So for the entrepreneur traveling into distant lands seeking opportunities, to develop an idea into a lasting memory through efforts of diversification into markets of gold and commodities; first begin to swim in shark infested waters, developing a strategy to combat the bites which attract more attention.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Reverse the attraction model and bend the product into one which has a strong marketable presence which can survive in competitive markets, learning enough to be the next big contender.

The singularity pull towards entrepreneurship presents itself as an opportunity to emigrate into a culture of action and positive returns.

Capital U- Who Am I?

PRICE PER ACTION
ECONOMY OF SCALE-VALUE BASED ECONOMY.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Investors of economies pay particular attention to the values of an entrepreneur and what scaling functions do they possess to maximize growth in revenue.

The price to act dangerously in territories of certain destinations to product force customer solutions criterions is the name of the fearless game.

A game no doubt categorizes those who can act without fear to dwell in the pool of depressed actions of fall mode continually or to those who seek results per action in order to create greater possibilities of success.

Neither the general rule but casualty in scale valued by investors to deserve more than just a cause to worry about their dollars in the future.

Or if their totalitarian approach in buying shares in hope to turnaround defeated companies to upspring through asset transfer is the most lucrative value one can dream to acquire.

But acquiring sensationalism at the helm of the micro quadrant table of indiscipline shareholders holding onto the last piece of distributions rights in order to qualify a triple multiplier to their depleted worth.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Transfer these ideals to the immigrant soul who still believes in the dream of middle class success.

Who will continue to exercise every breathing method to obtain this limitless dream because it is a possibility waiting to happen.

A sheer appointed luck of grace of such idealism falls flat on the best days of a successful entrepreneur.

The price of failing desperately conjures a defeatism attribute which ends in catastrophic sentiments about trying or dying, a living without success if not a termination of their self ideation.

A succinct story glorified daily in a marketplace of high retention depletion.

A dream can last mere seconds in thought of the customers who seek something different. A tackle to every thoughtful idea becomes depleted, then more it is in full thought and production of it enters the marketplace, too late is competition decides which idea is fruitful on the tree or in the palm of its consumers.

Capital U- Who Am I?

An appetite to fuel a desire for product maximization is in fact a manipulative process of how goal continuation of the value is worth more through high generation of its distribution.

The fallout rate of the ideal candidate and contribution to new product stimulates discussion on where the intended market is and how persuasion can be used to the consumer's advantage.

A time eloped strategy all doomed to fail continually as new technologically advanced software ideation products outflow of production maximization shaman behavior.

As it affects all the value based chain links from composition level to the emigrant jumping boat to land, to better their own personal economy which is on shaky grounds to be erupted.

As corporations continually compete against each other; their product value increases far more than purposeful relational value between employer -employee relations.

It's new, distant and far apart that the labor market filled with many valuable economical tools and tradecraft are more functionally leaning towards technological tools, cheaply replaceable than a human capital labor expensive to maximize.

Capital U- Who Am I?

The shifting of the marketplace value based economy to mass production to scale to labor absolute scaling expenditures as the dominant area of freeing the dollar movement.

Justifying actions in the new geo-marketplace structuralism; the geo-labor market volunteers must now adapt to new ideation and ideals, to penetrate these new frontiers by being the creators of application intelligence networks.

There exists no economy to scale because of the tipping towards idea hoarding of value based corporations to become bankers of their own corporate success. And their movement towards building bigger and broader spectrum chain links, to disturb smaller economies diversification into larger economic marketplace.

Absorption into the futures market is uncertain territory for all seeking new ventures towards their social economic life.

Capital U- Who Am I?

A territory opened up by seekers of territorial growth and expansion to disrupt aging of businesses through new economic expeditions.

No amount of preparation can delimit the risks in venturing as luck for opportunities cannot give a certainty of results needed for a measure of success. Plotted by entrepreneurs, emigrants, migrants or deserters of economic oppression.

THE BOTTLENECK ECONOMY
COMPETITIVE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH:

Capital U- Who Am I?

Competitiveness found within economies built to be irregular and open to those who seek to propel their product into a great customer experience, thus wanting a greater spending power is definitely the positivity outcome searched by economic leaders.

Whether the smearing of its jurisdictional territory to conquer economic growth and its subsidiaries is looked upon as economic hoarding and bad for the social economics governance of many; is nothing more than the ambitions of men to feel deeply in love in what they do.

The insignificant victims to those economies never recover greatly after a downfall of their spending power.

Even in its transference or assistance via programmes and institutions; their will and identity if not transferred to meet the tyranny demands of the few in charge, will definitely allow more citizens to remain victims to the system.

Notably the neck hold of the bottle economy caused by the invariable subtleness of business and market distribution gives off an aurora that only the fearless recedes above the bottleneck.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Its passageways are so intensified and narrow that a choke emanates when many hopeless social citizens close their minds and hearts to achieve the inevitable.

Regardless of their outcomes they prey on the systems blaming everyone but their indecisive methods of irrational investing.

The distribution of wealth sounds interestingly fertile and attainable but in a highly competitive marketplace, not all can distribute continually to the distribution of significant money plays in the money market.

As more and more fall from grace into the abyss of quietness and nothingness, re-strategizing what went wrong and how quickly they recover.

Still believing in the economic dreams and their triumphant moment yet to come.

Without innovation, creativity, resiliency, knowledge and grit, how can it be attainable, simpleton?

Capital U- Who Am I?

As year on year competition grows as more businesses die out due to money manipulation and re-directional horizontal mergers and acquisition.

No more co-dependency and partnering with small identities to scale but values as little commodity worth nothing more than a voice in a conference room.

Money buying wealth as money is now owed in ways every spent cent contributing to others continual survival remains tax free once assistance to the fallen class of the workforce benefits from it.

Just to prevent a mass overload of dissent citizens now rebelling against the populace few who built the bottleneck to prevent unwanted guests who may pilfer their ways to uncharted territory.

The economy is not to scale, so as the imagery thought that all will benefit from the sentimental values of the rivalry economy in the hope that their draw would be lucky.

This near shoring reality is that this ticket system syndrome of first in line and first in sight is not one attribute a social citizen shall apprise themselves of as the only way one can achieve economic stability.

There exists no number system or numerical charting plot aligned to the universe trajectory finding favor due to past passage and deeds.

A horrific way to describe an unbecoming success story!

But this tarot system works for those who still lack the inner strength to go through their road discovery one step at a time.

Indecisiveness will bring out a fruitful result from the tiresome attempts to become better in the talent one can achieve.

Thus, the higher the symmetry of problems with the value chain of economies along with its complexities the more economic wealth attaches to it.

This is the only reality one can ascribe too, far from the mysticism of life successes.

Capital U- Who Am I?

So beginning anew; a reasonable goal to accomplish is to understand the marketplace your talent lies in and how you can contribute to drive traffic to your domain.

Through trial and error, succeed or fail; continually the competition would soon see a new rival seeking new ventures into the space.

The bottleneck is a reality and one which malingers longer than any entrepreneur previous discovery.

Acknowledging this at its earliest stage would prepare any entrepreneur on the negative outcomes to business entrepreneurship.

Know your bottleneck industry well enough to manipulate a successful product which can withstand cyclical geoeconomies hold on it.

THE LOST ECONOMIC TRIBE:

Capital U- Who Am I?

Questions to be answered reader-are you economies built to last? Are financial institutions secured enough to cover all labor market diffusion rates? Can an economic refugee remain sustainable in all types of political economies?

These questions are left to revise in a quiet space away from distractions as many labor forces suffer from one or all three of these entities.

They are of course living and breathing entities built to keep the machine operational. As the market economy fluidity occupies space not occupied and fills the voids whenever it floats.

However fluid they may be, it drags the labour market with it as well as their purchasing power to acquire the essentials.

The more tidal waves occupying the sea of commercial transactions and wealth, the more social economic communities and households drown with its depth of force.

So much so that recovery efforts require decades of manipulated assistance and perseverance to restart in an already fluid and fast moving economy.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Amidst all those chaos of competition, the household then admits to clearing house techniques to avoid earliest errors and to build a better house which can float on water and tend to the tides well.

To be tied to a dock on torrential weather watch is creating the inevitable and deliberately creating a disastrous future for all within their own space.

For the future economic showdown is not kind to the poor; neither welcoming to the forgotten.

Many attempts to build from ashes only turns out to be a history of blame and discomfort only attaining to the tunes of their former ancestors to bring knowledge of the past to rebuild former colonies they can identify with.

It becomes a stretch to resurrect old ideologies in a global economy adapting to the speed of light.

For today every labor force in their own profession might conjure a deliberate action which would benefit their output by maximizing their growth curve forcefully just in the attempt to remain relevant.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Forceful consumer brand marketing 24 hours a day, numerous color schemes and attractive messages to keep the 24/7 outlets filled to capacity at the expense of the jumbie of the deserter; fetching for a quench in the well to live their potential in being the next hopeful millionaire candidate.

An attempted minimum wage earner can only dream of once a potential opportunity to be part of a system cyclical curve within the labor force, forced to mass produce at the expense of productive thinking to build external dreams. Are the realities faced by the lost tribes.

They all are trying to survive and complain about the dream but to live and to keep living requires a sacrifice in a very monstrous creative world.

Tearful acne and body aches coupled with a chokehold of debts and uncertainty of tomorrow plagues the class which affects continual children of tomorrow.

A class unto itself, by itself and is managed by a fear of not remaining in that class.

To seek many alternatives even if migration is the only thought towards their alternative living.

Capital U- Who Am I?

Leaving behind a lineage culture adaptive to their history. A history which did not prepare them for the upheavals today.

As their historians also known as politicians deny longevity through innovation to be part of the national discussion except the wielding of power to continue past attrition, thus forcing countless history to be ripped apart so that the futures of the present are stuck in derision.

As intercultural migration of people all seeking an attempt to live comfortably at least some part of their lives as indeed a wish all seek.

And to remain a status hiatus disfigurement in line to be ridiculed feeding a lineage of people all dependent on day old jobs just to keep secured and comfortableness remains the history of mankind.

As ages pass this form of survivability is considered the only chosen path for the human race to remain relevant.

The movements of people, talent, creativity, ideals, customs, culture and history live in the attempts to flee the same type of human disasters.

Capital U- Who Am I?

If not then, lineages would be destroyed and the people would be considered extinct and lost forever.

People move physically from one economic safe zone to another along with their memories and stories. So reader the next time you meet a distant foreigner attempting to survive; give them a chance to express their stories through memories.

You will discover a lost economic tribe within those lines!

TOPIC END

The world the labor market subscribe to; either by force through the culture of work or inherited by fortune or by being the 1st generational wealth managers, all must subscribe to the sweat equity handed down to us by people of yesterday.

Whether still useful today the labor market comes from many jurisdictions and many reasons for their journey all trying to be the next big thing.

However suited it may be not all will accomplish personal wealth to carry through their lifetime and their dependents of tomorrow.

Hence this eBook reiterates some key functions a labor force must understand in order to see the reality which they at most times purposely block in order to satisfy their ego.

"Your illusions must have limits in the game of life."
