PREFACE

This eBook was written to give attention to the dramatic layouts of the economy which most successful entities refuse or refrain to atone to; only by minimizing product information dissemination to the workforce who intends to be part of the larger groups of corporate life.

A competitive corporate industry is combative in nature and its mere existence is to be product thirsty and customer hoarding to win the battle of dominancy.

In order to achieve greatness, an investment into the army would increase the chances of talent growing internally into soldier at arms, equip with the necessary skill set to win all upcoming battles on the market place.

For corporate armies to exist and with a side note; they are very competitive in the hindsight of success without a battle strategy to incorporate both wins and losses; a corporate dream would be annihilated.

To succumb to failure for preparation of both strategy would be the fault of the planner; as this intent to wider the singular optical view of funnel abstract to molding profit margins to the control of who shall be the opponent worthy to battle.

Ideally its contents was written to ensure corporate armies importance as a balancer of the world economies and to identify who are strong enough to endure its conditionality, fatalities and victories along the journey of corporate war.

INTRODUCTION

Acknowledging that there exist an economic war early in the seedling stage of a company would increase their chances to prepare a battle strategy early on.

A decisive move to show all competitors that the new incumbent is indeed a reckoning worth being aware of.

As this topic theme elaborates the importance of having a blueprint of the market area one entity desires to operate in.

For their opponents operates within the shadows utilizing all types of strategy to compete unfairly in the market of commodities.

No reason of truce and submissiveness for all destined to become more than the commoner would have to partake in the legacy which built economic nations.

As a corporate army, their mission is to take as much prisoners they can and submit to the buy-in strategy of channeling all product cycle to their only desire to be captivated and enslaved, to the only marketable, sellable and scalable product of one infinity.

TOPIC 1

THE IRIS

Seeing future past; passed corporate structures caught in the wind of dismal and dust. Soaked with the horrors of stories from directors and stalwarts, destroying the corporate seal just in the name of global hierarchal targets.

Target aimed at a distance not coordinating strategic projection in determining if this target area is the most focused point an entire entity should focus to immobilize its opponents.

The war between corporate and corporation fuels the desire to win the title of tomorrow customers and intended clienteles who are so disinterested to be pawns to these warmonguls.

The sight on seeing destruction laid on the market place of countless battles of corporate giants and small despot bands of Collective Corporation, to offset the capacity of the singular giant is truly the desire of the capitalization of the scarcest and rarest element of business called it warrior monies.

Pinned down with suppressive fire from state entities and monolithic government legacies frameworks, the true iris is always a birth out of destruction.

Businesses do die and reborn into a new competitive drive so do rebirth continues out of the existence of an old distributive force.

It continues unabated the dissolution of corporate structures to enhance all capabilities to strike for perfection within a forced element, where only the striking will of its mechanics will endure the long suffering to sacrificial matrimony only to the corporate seal and only to the wants it desires.

A commitment that excellence is not a word to be flunked around haphazardly but to admire its results when projects of world domination are fertile and the players become addicts to the hype of causality.

The gun fire is aimed continuously at the market competition to either dissolve their franchise into a segment unit of singularity or to abandon the mission of succession and personal domination.

Unless ignorant to the pit of damnation, an iris sight into the future can only be the most resolute solution to continue the warpath of excellence drive.

The iris; the main course to understanding what customers may want and need to survive into the future. As quickly it is seen abandoning all existing traits of minor excellence; can be separate, converted, transported or signaled onto another, placing all laser beam focus into the new frontier.

The fronterism is the only mechanism, mechanics and architects of the future the human race can exist. As existence is crucial and important to further develop the race into a more complex species which can be limitless.

For it can only be done by fronterism and focus into the iris of dominion.

Marching with and not without the army backed to support the effort of the new millennia. For their importance is to ensure a balance between the ignorant source of human destruction which lies within the brain and the wiling heart of revolution and change for the evolution of the race.

The race for world balance can place all efforts to be prioritized and important than the existence plague humanity has created.

Indeed looked upon as separating the weak from the strong but the emergence of new territorial growth, whether in interstellar coupling of colonies or improving stateless economies, the happenance is never forgotten.

The corporate minds must past see the present and enter the new future carrying the corporate mechanists and creative engineers along with the journey.

Before the endgame occurs and the entity is destined by creativity as the corporate war continues, concerning new innovative minds to rid of the yesterday market sell point and to divert new paths for succession.

To be always cognizant that corporation is born to be a war machine and preparations of this ensure eyesight's are focused.

TOPIC 2

IMPERIALIST NATIONALIST

A corporate allegiance to national pride and social globalization annexed to government symbolism is a parade for imperialism and total dominancy in the global economic trade.

A corporate lineage of well bred imperialist armed with their armies to infiltrate world markets in all territories to socially displace loyalist commitments to local brands emanating as competitors jurisdictionally.

A hegemonic traits of necessity as this prepares new entrants with the ideological concept that corporate war is indeed the game played within the upper league.

For the middle and the little leagues are the non competitive zones for minor competitors or undecided positionary actors exercising their rights of indecisive, unformulated and unreason biases about their competitors as well as their fortified armor to enter these arenas.

For the upstage improves the creativity of the underdog, tied with emotions and tags, these emotions to a self reliant pose of their willingness to overcome their fear of death, once they are prepared to enter the battle of corporation to truce their only attempts to become indefinite.

As business dies to a constant age of battling and fortifying their market position, so as such to defend their pride with honor, lose all hope when the armies of commitments grew tired of losing viciously by greater armies.

Let alone die shamefully without a remembrance of having a legionnaire army, destined to be reverence as the best but instead were only recognized for their constant barrage talking from the industry bests.

Penetrative action to defend corporate seal at all cost is recognized when the corporation transform into an indestructible competition for every industrial changes within the market.

A balancing act indefinite to purpose and to be the guard from creativity and innovation going forward.

A solemn pride for controlling territories with products all are in need of. Dominating all other product lines and the hopeful competitors, who may possess the inner confidence to usurp the confidence purchasing indexes of the market place.

Arguably they all fall victim to the tyranny of these balancing actors who justify their actions as attempting to be a adventurer to new customization of industry best opponents.

Little do any thought arise of their importance to the economy of others who having seen their best counter battle strategy to rid of corporate giants is regarded as not their best enough for the customers they provide onto.

Nationalism Corporation a trait rediscovered within the territory of the new century, as today national pride fuels economics to fight over the many resources in the hands of others.

A switching of hands game for dominant encroaching and invading markets to takeaway hostility from the practice and to accept the truth that their corporate strategy was not full proof enough to withstand the wrath which flooded their small market territory.

As every brotherly love initiative by larger economies to assist the smaller economies, through diversified efforts can be looked as hostile takeover and transformation, as states find ways to move investment when they themselves are backed by only debt securities, repayment on diversified interests rate, suppressive enough for debtors to make new economic transcend debt for the long haul.

Nation states acting in concordant to nation corporations or vice versa are the armies backed as a conglomerate to diffuse territorial insemination of investment carried by other competitor drive force to also enter resourceful systems.

For imperialism works as a substitute to ensure new entrants with desire to compete among the best or fall victim, as so many had if not prepared to undertake the battle strategies created by the team.

TOPIC 3

THE RAINBOW EFFECT

The corporate evolution is the willingness to adapt to change to morph into a new identity to survive the changing environment of innovation.

Like shadows in the dark, innovation creeps in the market to justify its entrance as the new threats to existing business. Their core beliefs are to endure their competitive wrath against the frequent old in a fight for dominance.

The rainbow effect is a steadfast entity breeding within the business network, as competitive industry are innovating their market space, to introduce new business model to either improve the destruction business would have created in lieu for success market dominance or to create anew a systematic core which can outperform their existing competition.

Regardless what objective is met, the multicolor economies of green, white, black, blue or digital is indeed an importance for a world balance.

That can be recognized as the reason business and corporate machines are built, not on the sweat of its enslaved employees but to represent one of the philosophical belief of survivability of the entire globalized space.

A space which encourages armies of the machine men to be hostile in the market and sympathetic to the monies they do not receive during transactions.

The rainbow effect has initiated a new warpath for the diligent and hungry adventurers of new born millennia's to enter refreshed and productive like no other part in history.

The hustling and rustling of the brain to create new content quickly without thinking so much on presentation but on the deliverance of speeches, so captivating that the analogies are reverence to the evangelism of transforming the dull swords to prepare for their own economic battles.

A thrilling effect of beauty and adrenaline rushed testosterone filled with devourers of old economic theories and charts of productive curve ratio, only filled with mathematics theorem of science of the brainless.

Destroying cells by over thinking when the world has adopt quickly to the use of their presence to deliver the speeches of hype and connectivity, the race of improving the destined atoms to become the individual they dream to be.

The rainbow effect introducing new product economies to bring nations closer to goals few can attest to, as competitive markets battles within the citizenry core and the multinational cores are all entering the same path to dominancy.

A bi-polar opposite, meeting the juncture when two opposites need each other to enhance their own economy over the economy of their competition.

A thrilling effect indeed the human species all coming united to create a cause of new growth curving battlefields, the way of the soldiers, the corporate armies destined to be the best version of themselves and their creativity.

A world which praises competition of the races as it's further the intensity drive to be a new species the world needs.

The colony of the rainbow to suit the narrative of individual goal seekers and annihilation seekers, pleasures on, only the destruction of business and hang up all trophies on walls based on memorabilia sync between conquest and conqueror.

The emergence is here to stay, the strong willed spacemen would always adapt to new occupied spaces and the weak will always be subjugated to the new economic laws of consumerism and allegiance to brand equity, for their necessity is of greater importance to the receivers than the suppliers.

However the rainbow appears or drops on the economy, ripe for a quick turnover, they accept no pot of gold, same and except, if the heart of the economy is in the right place to endure no matter the global changes created by new color economies.

TOPIC 4

PRISONERS OF WAR

The sell point is arguably the most important and universal crucial epiphany a seller can use to sell dreams.

Selling economic dreams to desperate citizens who dwell in economic circumstances either they inherit or were institutionally designed to keep them abreast to a reality they are continually succumb too.

For the war is the entire global world reality all have to be prepare for. As always some would not be prepare for the outcomes of this reality and retreat early, getting shot down in the back for not doing what was instructed for the recipient to do.

To participate in the game of economic design, to be either the customer of goods or services or producers of goods and many other essential added services.

The game of inequity and inequality made for the strongest to endure and for prisoners population (customers) to increase yearly into the camps of despair.

A desperation all adventure seekers search for to be free from economic slavery and its carried starvation it channels to other generational recipients.

On seeing these sell points comes the destiny to be the creator of crafts and machinery to welcome as a new entrants into population destabilization and local economic warfare against local entrepreneurs, to dominate a market forced onto without consultation.

The well crafted strategy of sell pitching ideas and dreams sub conscience enough to propel the listener to allow their entrance to point a picture of desire only their basic social conscience ethics can prevent them to acquire.

However the purpose driven force it requires to propel new customers into a margin of product maximization, neither it can be told about the influence of dominating the market selling ideas and products of its magnificent structures.

The global outreach programs of price targeting and affiliating a nation's gross domestic product (GDP) to fixed price commodities thus eliminating competition globally in sectors with high revenue margins are just the battle on the field repeating to all corporate armies that some level of their efforts are bearing fruits.

A fruitful dilemma when two opposites forces continually fights for land occupancy-dominancy markets or multinational sectoral pegging over a period of time, shows their powers marginalizing their sectors of investors and stakeholders, thus producing greater economic push factor for their pull factor bravery on taking their rightful place of entering the corporate war.

On mentioning this it is indeed recognizable that entrance in the corporate war by choosing their intended competitor to wage public battle with their corporate markets can indeed increase share value on both ends than the cowardice retreats many customers do, if they intend to reverse their consumerism habits into a producer one.

A game each corporate citizen must enter to be the prisoners of war until the escape plan is thoroughly mapped out to encourage freedom to occur in the market and to sectoralize its already unstable division.

But it is never over as the freedom it allows calls for the participation to invade other territories to capture more vulnerable sectors to captivity, play them into holdment and functioning them into camps, with sizeable funnel capacity, in a long end approach of imprisonment.

Some nation states and its customers are not fervent enough to acknowledge or to identify if they fall into captivity and systematic imprisonment as their economy are not force functional enough to determine as such.

For knowledge of it is evident but not chastised to the general public in fear of reprisal for its constant encouragement over the years.

The state and its statehood are divided even in this 21st century as their polarized economies are not dissimilar in action, for both are co-dependents into the attached armies which supply them with resources to protect the interest groups and governance, in preventing hostile business systems in invading their harmonious ecosystem.

While it remains incumbent to use the prison population (customers) as scapegoat to raise policies to defer payment systems as crashing, it cannot be remise to take away the only hope for local corporate entities to prepare a battle plan to enter the sizeable markets, which is beyond their safe zone and also the capital markets.

As this is their only hope to ensure territorial growth remains in the hands of the local and not the armies who invade to be the only investors to growth.

TOPIC 5

CORPORATE

REBORN

Taking advantage of depressionary market conditions with huge turbulence and tidal wave, sweeping every division of business in these categories is a practice corporate armies practice.

The question which endows any oblivious student of economic depression is why take advantage of weak market trends and its condition in order of dominating market?

The answer to these popular decisions to act is in the form of balancing these entities, so such depressed systems do not alter significant changes to the already governmental policies which cannot do enough to balance the existing spending capacity between the state and its affiliates.

Simply place this sentence in the context that one hand cannot instruct decision unless the other is fully apprised of its decision, comfortable enough to be part of its decision.

Policies are not the infinite rule to economic balances as its worth to each corporation can be utilized differently within their market segment.

The corporate responsibility is to intermix unpopular social decision in lieu of capital dominancy and interdependencies within the network.

However these actions are looked upon the government agencies and the international stakeholders, their design were created to dominate the chain links which are merge together, for all to be suppressive when shocks occurs on these links regardless if each link represent an entirely different segment, their combined essence of linkages, proves that their importance to each other are crucial in keeping social economic jobs and stability of the business economy flowing.

Simultaneous it differs also due their close proximity when one market shocks occurs forcing all to manipulate its togetherness completely into one breaking the chain to link new chains as a supportive arm in preventing total depressionary wave.

Uncertain predictions are predatory in nature hence the decision to be brutal in the market and to take every lead as an advantage when opportunity comes.

Indicative enough it is not nearly productive enough to just be oblivious to its reborn but to acknowledge the harvesting events are just the fruits bearing worth and its labor intensified its accessible worth.

A worth many corporate institutions or government are willing to pay and many subsidize the burden from the consumers or its citizenry when harvest time are upon the market place.

A righteous deliverance of the importance of maximizing territorial spread and ensuring other local economies are strengthened enough to hold territorial forth from market penetration and global catastrophe that are uncertain and surely difficult to predict.

An assurance to all stakeholders to commit to self-deprecating in value of money earned, money spent and money distributed to other asset closures in lieu of supporting markets colossal warfare strategies each are participating in.

For their can be no freedom to this tyrannous end, a fortified business unit being overtaken by corporate hegemonic armies built to invade and to conquer all assets in importance to the entity survival.

Resources which can be converted into other asset class and be the new product life cycle for the new economy along with a buyer's guide.

A straddle of funnels and deep ended pockets wins the order of the dry season in the markets. Its population destabilization efforts creates a world balance ensuring that the defeated is not left behind with enriched resources that go to waste immediately when left unattended.

A true battle field which prisoners of war are left with the dignity that their corporate entity can be reborn into new product dynamics if willing to accept defeat.

A brutal decision every corporate army must take on for assets of different classes as well as their corporate soldiers do have interdependent claim to the tools which made the battle possible.

A global sunk market can occur anytime as corporate battles continues in the market place and its post conditionality which causes the tidal wave events, sinking all unplanned business entities, who are in dependence of those corporate war, thus creating a new possibility to engage in harvesting of sinking business entities are the continual global market conditions each corporate system must prepare for.

TOPIC 6

THE EMERGENCE OF CORPORATE BOOTH CAMPS

”Business is more about warfare and survival than living the ultimate dream”. A quite unique symbolic reference of what corporation does and significantly the beauty which resonates behind its formation are the reason societies live for.

This purpose for living and striving everyday to seek greater divinity throughout the life cycle of the business.

A corporate ecosystem all placed together to assist with its function.

And seeing its fruits gradually bearing fruit when bloom days are ahead of the curve.

Hence its necessity to form corporate booth camps for the corporate armies to test their mantle and to prepare them for the business of economic diplomacy.

As survivability depends only on the organism willingness to mutate into a new diabolic species destined for one objective only.

The objective to ensure viability and reliability of all product line and its supportive agent’s structure to be that staff line when everyone needs it.

Booth camps are formalized to target specific areas where there can be a chance to reap financial rewards when entering regardless if it can be described as a new entrants or existing.

Trained in the art of the many skills to up sell the learner into being a resourceful economic worker soldier the corporation needs.

Whether it be the booster business unit leading the corporate decree amour; its supporting agents skills designed only to fit for dominancy; removes the old industrial thoughts of the old systematic learning facilities and to add new addictive thoughts worth centuries in creating financial wealth.

Disguise as a remedy for all economic disease plaguing all economic sanctioned diplomatic core or a fertile resourceful element, it serves no greater purpose to not participate in re-engineering the social workforce into a corporate soldier functioning on only the corporate regulation and orders, manifesting as a company missionary goals to aid a nations future strategy.

For war beckons all to prepare for its coming and strategizing on all measures, on how to not be a casualty when it strikes.

To be the arm bearer of defense and popularity to its citizens core who seeks more of its victory than the ones who are placed in the frontline.

Public massacre of voices used to destabilize strong economic corporations as being too powerful to control having fought and won all victorious battle in the economic growth, to now be the victor of being too monolithic and monetized, controlling the legislative structures of nation states are the afterthought of the worried workforce.

Not forgetting these victories are of the result of enforcing a corporate boot camps rigid enough to produce armies destined for results.

A future journey all would want to be called on as being successful in this art of war.

Reasons on its questionable purpose cannot delineate its importance why its adoption rate has increased as its merges today throughout many societies to build trust with their product and to part of this revolution is the new certainty.

To overcome the poor spirited work force who may believe that hope and dreams are just the discipline and to adopt these skill set are for the heart of warriors and leaders to direct.

Societal upheavals has surely produce present and future inferior minded workforce who seek defeatism before victory.

A decadence of historical teachings and livelihood brought out the citizens of hopelessness and submission with the aid of future visionaries and luminaries.

The corporate booth camps are the only institutions which can uplift and invigorate the poor spirited workforce to taste the blood of victory and what labor equity can produce going forward.

The thrill it seeks out and its desires to demand more when placed into the battlefield with the skill set, tools, machine minded approach and the investor at the back cheering the support, are indeed the manifestation all must lurk for.

For public scrutiny for its development only enrages the armies to be more dismissive and to continue its path to be the opponent it was chosen to be.

These are the important questions on the importance of its development and for corporations to invest in corporate booth camps or intended visionaries to redefine what is being taught within the economic systems of universities.

As more workforce are drawn into corporate responsibilities they must be re-taught to be soldiers at arms willing to give their entirety to participate in the market economy and be successful for self and corporate.

For business cannot wield its lineage power unless they possess the armies to draw its power, the infinite call to the future generation of corporation.

TOPIC END

The corporate struggle is real and being laser focused and ritual in succeeding the corporate war is what is written to the audience.

To be disparage about the corporate lineage of battle strategy and its importance towards having a world balance gives rise to the importance of creativity and its associate armies, trained to deliver results.

Whether win or lose, the participation is vital enough to raise the standard of the completion in the market place into a new level tier, thus ring an emotional randomness for chasing excellence.

This topic theme examines the importance of their existence and the background behind its functionality.

“The architects of tomorrow economic futures rest in the vicious participation of corporate armies today”.
