Mathematical Genius

Everyone gets an opportunity to do more of themselves but the debatable question is what you do, having received the possibility to act on it.

As this can be the penultimate factor between possessing the authority to act and failing to act on many decision life throws at you.

The question is when is your time?

When would you be given the opportunity to deliver your talent to the broader stage?

This illusion of when the inopportune time is surely not based on the concept of one but many.

If not at peace with yourself to even acknowledge the placing of your destiny, one step at a time, you would definitely miss the entire stair case.

To get ahead means to get focus on the stage, so the early it can be recognize the faster it would reveal itself onto you.

That is the way of getting ahead of the counting line.

For mathematically; probabilistic events are showing up throughout the sentient beings purpose and destiny to discover more of themselves.

Serving One Master

Because there are so many unique but different types of talents all serving the same purpose to fight a system to be recognize against all the odds of not achieving it, is the matrix of how the world bleeds it.

It is really a conversation of if you will achieve your big break than when.

There exist so many copies of each other, all circling in unison for their big break.

The Head Game

Making the talent profession to feel a sense of remorse, for either developing the wrong skills or for not maximizing enough their skills to be the next mark on the list to be called.

The head game is complicated as all are trapped in it but the game must be played and giving up now because of a little set back and delusional fantasy is not the right type of attitude in today's fantasy competitions.

Competitors are all birthed to be a warrior, chosen for a destiny path they know that they would be closer to their number when it calls.

While others play the turtle game and slows their progress to satisfy others own satisfaction and not theirs.

Success is Measurable

It takes no prisoners and it requires your total attention to the game plan ahead. The numbers are outrageous and ever building for time calculated in milliseconds and not days, is the best solution to draw a narrative towards success.

For success is measurable by numbers and your achievements is calculated gradually on the count of numbers: before, after and to the future.

The charts go one directional unless your deviate the course due to shock therapy and self sabotaging your dire efforts.

Too Many Versions

For no need of such, as any attempt to not finish this game of life can place a further delay to yourself and create many copies of your talent just for the numbers to keep rolling.

Too many versions can kill the prize of success but its infiltration just shows you that so many are not original but they rather try than not at all.

Being Purposeful

Regardless if it is not their calling to deliver original products they rather rejoice in its deliverance and exuberance victory over none.

Being purposeful enough to warrant the world to take notice of you and your talent is worth the investment.

It is rather a shameful attempt to call it quit before you start. For it can be very near impossible to restart when failure is your option.
