Sociology In Economics

Connectivity between socio-politico economies and blood ties are ever the disturber of an economy when dilution, split offs or spun offs occurs.
Either one of them supports the ever greedy notion that some amongst all needs the support of many to realign the histories of good fortune to the next in kin.
Kind enough these firewall struggles take little notice to the many bottom economy who struggles daily to keep up with those monopoly enterprises.
Whether it is state or micro, it affects the core function of the state business and those who are malignant to diversified networks.
Too close call for action and too far call to action; either how it swings it cannot change the after effect forums of the interdependency between those two elements.
Too large to fail but to hope that its failure cannot occur is diabolic to defer the inevitable.

It cannot continue to be sustained by false projects and money management schemes, hopeful that securities would not be overpriced to be bought.

Techniques and tactics in order of the tune of millions of liquid funds drawn down for later economic strike and back pedaling.

All the product of blood line and heritage asset to protect discounting, to meet recent target price and to formulate a gesture that these significant changes are just smoke in the wind, no alarm to be had and no blow to the divestment.

A close call where a giant elephant caught on a tight rope balancing an enormous weight over a height, which surely can cause instant death when dislodged due to windy uptakes of the economy.

An analysis of the better half of none is better than the other.

Too close to call, that righteous speaking board members would allow those monstrous economies to be spun off a lineage tree, distant from their stockholders impeding a notion that immortality runs deep in this bloodline.

Unison In Salt

A pinch of illusion and devolution caught the very best investor to pitch ideas to confirm that they were never caught on the idea of 100% guarantee risk adverse product selling and acquiring.

A nation which fall preys to those demons is the product of bankrupts and insolvency of both their personal and business capitalization.

Without protectionist regime system and frameworks the poor instilled with hope of a brighter tomorrow would cease to be the next victim of financial prophecy.

For the substance of life journey polluted by a downstream economy going red, afflicts pain and growing sorrows for all who depends on these economies of scale.

A Long History

A minority scale of production supplying other smaller customers all feel the turmoil of this tsunami carrying their way without personal protection of assets.

A long history of these practices forces many states to protect investors who use these powerful corporations as a means to grow their liquid assets.
